Dear Sirs,

After having read a bit about the anti-trust case against Microsoft I am dismayed that they are getting off so lightly.

They have proven to be anti-competitive and a remedy that prevents them from throwing their muscle around is needed.

Please read the three articles in the links below that suggest where the deficiencies and loopholes in the proposed settlement exist.

This group is a well informed and industry respected worldwide.

Microsoft produce good enough products to be able to play fairly and compete with the rest of the world. They shouldn't be allowed to squash and kill off competition.

Regards,

George
